

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CONTACT:
Mary Kay Jezzini
SAGE Publicist
publicity@sagepub.com

SAGE CELEBRATES CONTINUED SUCCESS PUBLISHING TEXTBOOKS TO PREPARE K-12 TEACHERS AND ADMINISTRATORS

SAGE publishes quality textbooks at prices students can afford!

Los Angeles, London, New Delhi, and Singapore (September 13, 2007) — Recognized for decades as an international publisher of journals, books, and electronic media for academic and professional markets, SAGE recently celebrated its fourth anniversary as a full-service publisher for the Higher Education curriculum in Education, providing future K-12 teachers and administrators with textbooks, instructional products and media ancillaries.

In December 2003, SAGE published its first college textbook supporting pre-service and in-service teacher education. In addition to more than 50 titles already published in the past three years, SAGE will introduce its first titles in the areas of Special Education, Early Childhood Education, and Instructional Technology in the coming months. Education areas in which SAGE already publishes include:

- Curriculum and Instruction
- Elementary Education
- Educational Foundations
- Language Arts and Literacy
- Educational Research Methods
- Educational Psychology
- Educational Administration and Leadership

“Beginning with our very first title, Educational Foundations, edited by Alan Canestrari and Bruce Marlowe (awarded the 2005 AESA Critic’s Choice Award), the SAGE Education titles have enjoyed enthusiastic reception in the market,” commented Christopher P. Klein, Vice President and Editorial Director, Books Acquisitions for SAGE. “SAGE’s commitment to teacher education focuses on providing both instructors and students with innovative, contemporary educational materials at a reasonable price. Given the success of our books to date, we feel we are effectively supporting fundamental improvement in the way students learn.”

SAGE Education titles can be viewed at www.sagepub.com.

###

About SAGE

SAGE is a leading international publisher of journals, books, and electronic media for academic, educational, and professional markets. Since 1965, SAGE has helped inform and educate a global community of scholars, practitioners, researchers, and students spanning a wide range of subject areas including business, humanities, social sciences, and science, technology and medicine. A privately owned corporation, SAGE has principal offices in Los Angeles, London, New Delhi, and Singapore. www.sagepublications.com