Is Islam Our New Enemy?

THOUSAND OAKS, California (August 2003) – The American Academy of Political and Social Science and Aslam Syed present a very special issue of The ANNALS, "Islam: Enduring Myths and Changing Realities," now available from SAGE Publications. The volume contains thought provoking articles by prominent scholars covering more than two hundred years of the American interaction with Islam and the Muslim World. From the shores of Tripoli to the occupation of Iraq, the American engagement with Islam reveals an intriguing synthesis of facts and fiction leading to persistent misperceptions of Islam, exaggerated hyperbol of "Islamic threat" to the American global interests, and unprecedented resistance to understand Islam and to avoid double standards in global politics. "Islam" will spark debate and discussion on both sides of this imagined fence and will lead to understanding and co-operation rather than to conflict and confrontation between the two civilizations. The American Academy of Political and Social Science (www.aapss.org) was created in 1889 to promote the progress of the social sciences. It did so by creating a forum in which research on contemporary political, economic, and social issues could help inform public policy as well as enlighten the intellectually curious. The ANNALS, the Academy's bimonthly journal, and the Academy's annual meetings, symposia, and special publications have served as vehicles through which its objectives have been achieved for more than 110 years.

SAGE Publications is a leading international publisher of journals, books and electronic media for scholarly, educational and professional markets. Since 1965, SAGE (www.sagepub.com) has helped inform and educate a global community of scholars, practitioners, researchers, and students.
