

Over 7 Million Users Now Have Access to the SAGE Full-Text Collections!

Thousand Oaks, California and London, United Kingdom (June 2005) – The SAGE Full-Text Collections were launched in 2003 with four collections. Currently, more than 7 million academics, researchers and professionals in 25 countries can access 10 discipline-specific SAGE Full-Text Collections via the CSA Illumina platform.

The SAGE Full-Text Collections are now available in the following disciplines: Communications Studies, Criminology, Education, Management & Organization Studies, Materials Science, Nursing & Health Sciences, Political Science, Psychology, Sociology, and Urban & Planning.

Currently accessible on the desktops of over 7 million users, these comprehensive full-text databases from SAGE contain more than 220 peer-reviewed journals, many ISI ranked, representing over 80,000 articles, book reviews, and editorials, with all the original graphics and tables. Through the SAGE Full-Text Collections, users benefit from both the most current articles as well as a deep backfile; some journals go as far back as 57 years!

“With the comprehensive content and the powerful CSA Illumina platform, it’s no surprise that millions of researchers are accessing the SAGE Full-Text Collections,” said SAGE Director of Sales, Rob Paulis. “Users are exploring both the most up-to-date articles and the archives in each of the ten collections, finding an unprecedented treasure trove of information right at their fingertips.”
