SAGE REFERENCE’S UNPRECEDENTED NEW
ENCyclopedia of Industrial and Organizational Psychology
RESEARCHES A GROWING, SOPHISTICATED FIELD OF BUSINESS

Thousand Oaks, CA and London, UK, and New Delhi, India (May 31, 2006) – Why do businesses need Industrial/Organizational (I/O) psychologists? I/O psychologists help workers optimize their health and well-being, and, as a result, the organization itself is strengthened. The striking vibrancy of this increasingly effective discipline is evident in its extraordinary growth over the last two decades, but I/O researchers haven’t been able to peruse subject-specific reference sources – until now.

SAGE Reference has addressed the field’s research void with its comprehensive new two volume Encyclopedia of Industrial/ Organizational Psychology. This is the very first reference source to capture the vast diversity and sophistication of this quickly evolving discipline.

Appropriate for experts, but still accessible to students and other non-experts, 400+ A-to-Z entries cover – with state-of-the-art research and ready-to-use facts – the ever widening range of topics studied by the cross-disciplinary I/O psychology field. Synthesizing social, clinical, applied psychology, health, and business sub-fields, the items explored are as diverse as:

- assessment
- compensation and work rewards
- ergonomics
- group dynamics
- human error and workplace safety
- judgment and decision making
- life/work balance
- motivation
- training programs
- workplace stress and health

All academic and public libraries, as well as corporations and career centers, will be sure to add SAGE’s unique The Encyclopedia of Career Development to their collections.

Co-editor Jeffrey H. Greenhaus is Professor and William A. Mackie Chair in the Department of Management at Drexel University’s LeBow College of Business.

Co-editor Gerard A. Callanan is an Associate Professor in the Management Department at West Chester University.
