SAGE eREFERENCE OFFERS FREE TRIALS, DISCOUNTED PRICING, FOR JANUARY 2007 LAUNCH

Thousand Oaks, California, London, United Kingdom, and New Delhi, India, Singapore – (November 13, 2006)
SAGE eReference is launching in January 2007 and libraries will be able to acquire it at a substantial discount. In addition, instead of the customary short-term trials, librarians will be able to select one of three encyclopedias to try out in advance of purchase and be able to keep that title for life!

SAGE eReference provides students and researchers online access to all the SAGE Reference titles, presenting a wealth of knowledge right at their fingertips. SAGE eReference includes all 48 best-selling and award-winning SAGE Reference encyclopedias, including such titles as Encyclopedia of Anthropology, Encyclopedia of Disability, and Encyclopedia of Measurement and Statistics.

“SAGE eReference is more than ‘just another database’ with the typical ‘one-size-fits-all’ purchasing plan,” commented Vice President and Publisher Rolf Janke. SAGE worked with librarians to offer SAGE eReference many library-friendly options including:

- Freedom to choose – Purchase a single title or the entire list—no minimum order, no hidden fees
- Purchase to own – Once you buy it, you own it forever
- Unlimited users – Many users can simultaneously access the same encyclopedia
- No hosting access fees – For the first 5 years

For a limited time libraries can purchase the complete catalog of online encyclopedias from SAGE Reference at 40% off the print price. And, if they’d like to peruse it in advance, librarians will be able to get a free trial, and lifetime ownership, of one of an online encyclopedia so that they can discover for themselves all the valuable features:

- Offers access from the library’s browser—no downloads or special readers needed
- Allows printable pages, copying, pasting, “email this entry,” and “cite this entry” options
- Helps libraries build an encyclopedia collection that doesn’t take up shelf space
- Supports Marc Records

For a free trial or to order, libraries should contact librarysales@sagepub.com. SAGE Reference encyclopedias will also still be available through Gale’s Virtual Reference Library.
