Read the Special Issue (March 2008) on Marketing Ethics and Distributive Justice in the Journal of Macromarketing!

Special Issue Editors: Gene Laczniak, Marquette University, and Patrick Murphy, University of Notre Dame

This special issue seeks to examine issues related to distributive justice—the question of whether members of the broad social system are receiving a “just allocation” of economic resources and whether they have the necessary means to participate adequately in the economic marketplace.

Visit http://macromarketing.sagepub.com and read the following articles:

“Distributive Justice: Pressing Questions, Emerging Directions and the Promise of Rawlsian Analysis”
by Gene R. Laczniak and Patrick E. Murphy

“A Theory of the Firm Perspective on Marketing and Distributive Justice”
by Liselore Crul and George M. Zinkhan

“A Macromarketing Ethics Framework: Stakeholder Orientation and Distributive Justice”
by O.C. Ferrell and Linda Ferrell

by Thomas A. Klein

“Fair-Trade: Just How Ethical Are Exchanges?”
by Amina Beji-Becheur, Virginie Diaz-Pedregal, and Nil Ozcağlar-Toulouse

“Improving Income Positions of Primary Producers in International Marketing Channels: The Lake Victoria-EU Nile Perch Case”
by Emma Kambewa, Paul Ingenbleek, and Aad van Tilburg

“Buyer-Seller Information Asymmetry: Challenges to Distributive and Corrective Justice”
by Oswald A. Mascarenhas, Ram Kesavan, and Michael Bernacchi

Don’t have access?
Recommend the journal to your library now: http://www.sagepub.com/libraryrec