The Journal of School Nursing (JOSN) and SAGE, Inc. present two writing awards each year to promote publishing that contributes to school nursing practice and recognizes excellence in writing. Published manuscripts are considered for the honor and award recipients are chosen by the Executive Editor and the Editorial Advisory Board according to the criteria that follow. Award winners are announced at the Annual Meeting of the National Association of School Nurses and the papers are promoted on the journal Web site and opened up for free access.

The JOSN SAGE Scholarly Writing Award

The JOSN SAGE Scholarly Writing Award recognizes excellence in writing and contribution to school nursing. The award-winning manuscript shall contribute to School Nursing by providing evidence-base for practice, research or a major review of research that significantly influences school health policy, improves school nursing practice, or contributes to school health administration and collaboration.

The JOSN SAGE First Publication Award

The JOSN SAGE First Publication Award recognizes writing excellence of a first-time school nurse author. The selected manuscript will represent the best first publication by a practicing school nurse published in the JOSN and judged on the basis of (1) its contribution to thought and or practice in school nursing and (2) the form and writing clarity of the submission.

Criteria for selection for the JOSN SAGE Scholarly Writing Award and the JOSN SAGE First Publication Award are as follows:

- The manuscript…
  - provided a clear introductory statement of the problem, purpose and related literature;
  - built on existing published studies;
  - presented new or innovative topic(s) for the Journal;
  - articulated a clear, creative contribution as noted in the award descriptions; and
  - met acceptable editorial requirements for publication upon initial submission

Papers published each year in the journal are considered for each award. The award recipients are chosen by the Editorial Advisory Board. No applications are accepted.
