Submission Deadline: January 31, 2009

Criminal Justice Policy Review is a multidisciplinary peer-reviewed journal publishing articles written by scholars committed to the study of criminal justice policy through experimental, quasi-experimental, and non-experimental approaches. The journal is published quarterly and accepts appropriate articles, essays, research notes, and book reviews. It also provides a forum for occasional special issues on notable topics in crime and justice. The journal appeals to criminologists, criminal justice researchers, sociologists, public administrators, and practitioners with an interest in criminal justice policy. For general information about Criminal Justice Policy Review, please go to <http://cjp.sagepub.com>.

The journal is currently soliciting manuscripts for a special issue on situational crime prevention. Situational crime prevention is often characterized as comprising measures (1) directed at highly specific forms of crime (2) that involve the management, design, or manipulation of the immediate environment in as systematic a way as possible (3) so as to reduce the opportunities for crime and increase the risks as perceived by a wide range of offenders. Manuscripts considered for publication in this special issue could focus on a variety of topics, including (but not limited to): (a) situational crime prevention impact research studies; (b) situational crime prevention typologies; (c) theoretical perspectives and situational crime prevention; and, (d) innovations in situational crime prevention. Keeping with the focus of the journal, all submissions should include a discussion of policy implications.
