Criminal Justice and Behavior* Editor
Honored With NCCHC's Award of Excellence in Communication

Each year, NCCHC honors outstanding individuals, communications, facilities and programs with the most prestigious awards in correctional health care. The B. Jaye Anno Award of Excellence in Communication pays tribute to innovative, well-executed communications that have had a positive impact on the field of correctional health care, or to individuals for bodies of work.

This year, the awards committee selected Curt R. Bartol, PhD, as the Anno Award recipient for improving the field of correctional health care through a record of great accomplishment as editor of Criminal Justice and Behavior. A licensed clinical psychologist, Dr. Bartol has been editor of CJB since 1996. During his tenure, CJB has thrived, growing from a bimonthly to a monthly and publishing manuscripts of markedly high quality.

CJB is the official publication of the International Association for Correctional and Forensic Psychology and is published by Sage. Its subject matter deals with the interface between the behavioral sciences and the criminal justice system, with emphasis on empirical research on assessment, classification, prevention, intervention and treatment programs. The journal also publishes theoretical and integrative review articles, commentaries and book reviews.

Dr. Bartol obtained his doctorate in social psychology and for 35 years has focused his career on providing psychological services to law enforcement, consulting for local, municipal, state and federal agencies. He also has authored or coauthored numerous books, including Delinquency and Justice: A Systems Approach, Psychology and the Law: Research and Application, Introduction to Forensic Psychology: Research and Application and Criminal Behavior: A Psychosocial Approach, and edited the periodical Current Perspectives in Forensic Psychology. For 33 years, Dr. Bartol taught psychology and law at Castleton State College in Vermont and founded its graduate program in forensic psychology, which he directed for six years.

The award will be given during the opening ceremony of the National Conference on Correctional Health Care, being held Oct. 18-22 in Chicago. The ceremony will take place the morning of Monday, Oct. 20.

About NCCHC: The National Commission on Correctional Health Care is a not-for-profit 501(c)(3) organization working to improve the quality of care in our nation's jails, prisons and juvenile detention and confinement facilities. NCCHC establishes standards for health services in correctional facilities; operates a voluntary accreditation program for institutions that meet these standards; produces and disseminates resource publications; conducts educational trainings and conferences; and operates a certification program for correctional health professionals. NCCHC is supported by 38 national organizations representing the fields of health, law and corrections. Each of these organizations has named a representative to the NCCHC Board of Directors.
