INTERNATIONAL SOCIAL WORK
Social welfare can be considered to be the well-being of the community as a whole. It is underpinned by those networks of relationships among persons, firms, and institutions in a society, together with associated norms of behaviour, trust, cooperation, etc., that enable a society to function effectively. The SAGE Library of Social Welfare focuses on the critical and reflective nature of social welfare, theory, policy and practice. By bringing together seminal works from across the social welfare spectrum, from social work and social care to youth and community work, these multi-volume collections encourage dialogue and debate on those issues relating to public and government intervention into social life.

Mel Gray is Professor of Social Work at the University of Newcastle, Australia. She is one of the world’s leading international researchers in the field of human services and a pioneer of international social development research. She is Joint Editor of the Australian Social Work journal and has an established international track record in publishing highly acclaimed research on knowledge formation strategies and experiential learning. Mel Gray is a pioneer in international human services research and is a member of the editorial boards of several international journals, among them International Journal of Social Welfare, Journal of Social Work, Families in Society: The Journal of the Contemporary Human Services, Journal of Immigration and Refugee Studies, Development Journal of South Africa, and the South African social work journal Social Work/Maatskaplike Werk.

Stephen Webb is Professor of Human Sciences and Director of the Institute of Advanced Study for Humanity (IASH) at the University of Newcastle, Australia. He is one of the world’s leading international researchers in the field of human services and is a pioneer of evidence-based practice research. Stephen Webb was recently awarded the prestigious and competitive German Academic Exchange scheme Deutscher Akademischer Austausch Dienst (DAAD) for a Visiting Professorship at the Centre of Human Capabilities Research, University of Bielefeld. He is on international editorial boards of the journals Australian Social Work, Social Work & Society and Critical Social Work.
