For over 60 years, the Journal of Teacher Education (JTE) has been a trusted and respected voice in teacher education. Five times a year, JTE provides a vital forum for considering practice, policy, and research. It covers themes such as: field experiences and teacher education; cognitive science and critical thinking; preparing teachers for urban schools; teachers' beliefs; accreditation and certification; selection, retention, and recruitment of minority teachers and teacher leadership; perspectives on leadership; professional ethics in teacher education; and restructuring teacher education.

The editors currently are seeking manuscripts for Volume 62, Number 1 (January-February 2011) dealing with any aspect of research, practice, or policy significant to teacher education. They particularly encourage writers to take controversial stands, challenge orthodoxy, and stimulate thoughtful reflection and discourse on both timely and timeless issues. They welcome high-quality conceptual pieces and empirical studies.

JTE is an interdisciplinary publication and welcomes submissions by related professionals. In the spirit of a global community, it encourages submissions from all regions of the world.

Manuscripts due: February 2010

For more detailed information about manuscript expectations and requirements, please visit http://jte.sagepub.com and click on Manuscript Submissions.

To submit a manuscript, please visit http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/jteachered