Contents

Foreword ix
  Jock Lauterer
Preface xiii
Acknowledgments xvii

PART I. BACKGROUND AND EXPLICATION 1
Chapter 1. Community Journalism: A Concept of Connectedness 3
  Bill Reader
Community Journalism Must Tackle Tough Local Issues 21
  Linda Steiner
Chapter 2. Key Works: Some Connections Between Journalism and Community 25
  Jack Rosenberry
Bringing Scholars and Professionals Together 43
  Gloria Freeland
Chapter 3. The Minnesota Team: Key Studies of Institutional Power and Community Media 45
  Eileen Gilligan
The Human Background to Research 59
  Eileen Gilligan

PART II. THEORIES AND METHODS 63
Chapter 4. Community Journalism and Community History 65
  Janice Hume
Reexamine the History of Big-City Community Journalism 83
  G. Michael Killenberg
Chapter 5. The Challenge of Measuring Community Journalism
Wilson Lowrey 87
Methodological Choices Offered From the Study of the Norwegian Press
Sigurd Høst 105

Chapter 6. Drawing From the Critical Cultural Well
Bill Reader 109
Asian and American Perspectives on Community Journalism
Crispin C. Maslog 125

Chapter 7. A View From Outside: What Other Social Science Disciplines Can Teach Us About Community Journalism
John A. Hatcher 129
Community Journalism as Metropolitan Ecology
Lewis Friedland 151

PART III. MULTIMEDIA AND GLOBAL CONSIDERATIONS 155

Chapter 8. Considering Community Journalism From the Perspective of Public Relations and Advertising
Diana Knott Martinelli 157
The Economics of Community Newspapers
Stephen Lacy 175

Chapter 9. Broadcasting and Community Journalism
George L. Daniels 177
The Developing World: Considering Community Radio in Africa
Guy Berger 195

Chapter 10. Community Journalism in an Online World
Hans K. Meyer and George L. Daniels 199
Citizens, Journalists, and User-Generated Content
Nicholas W. Jankowski 219

Chapter 11. Magazines and Community
Cary Roberts Frith 223
Making the Mundane Matter
Carolyn Kitch 237
Chapter 12. Community Journalism as an International Phenomenon 241

John A. Hatcher

Studying the Global Community of Community Journalists 255

Chad Stebbins

APPENDIX: Resources for Community Journalism Researchers 259

INDEX 265

ABOUT THE AUTHORS 280