Call for Papers

A SPECIAL ISSUE OF AFFILIA
WOMEN, WAR, AND PEACE BUILDING

Special Issue Editors:
Fariyal Ross-Sheriff, Howard University
Mary Swigonski, Monmouth University

Affilia is planning a special issue on women, war, and peace building. We invite papers that

- elucidate atrocities against women, including sexual violence;
- examine and analyze advocacy with and on behalf of the victims of such violence;
- examine and analyze women’s active participation in resistance and liberation movements during times of war;
- documents women’s contributions to their countries as members of the civilian communities that sustain families socially, economically, and spiritually during times of war;
- explicate women’s organizations and leadership in war and peace making; and
- describe and analyze women’s unique contributions to the peace movements.

Historical, quantitative and qualitative research, policy development, and policy analysis papers from a feminist and social justice perspective are welcomed.

Manuscripts may not exceed 20 pages double-spaced, all inclusive, for quantitative papers and 25 pages double-spaced and all inclusive for historic or qualitative papers. All papers should follow the APA style. All manuscripts will be peer reviewed. Send four copies of the manuscript, NO LATER THAN JUNE 15, 2005 to:

Fariyal Ross-Sheriff
Special Issue on Women, War and Peace Building
Howard University
School of Social Work
Howard University
Washington, D.C. 20059